I woke up in the morning
in my superhero bed.
With my superhero teddy
by my super sleepy head.

I sat with Dad and watched some superheroes on TV.

I told him: "When I'm grown up,
THAT'S what I'm going to be."

I dive-bombed off the sofa.
I ran, I jumped, I twirled.
"I'll be a SUPERHERO and I'm going to save the world!"

"Excellent!" said Dad.
"That does sound a lot of fun."
I said: "Let's go and find one,
and we'll ask them how it's done."

I grabbed my bright red welly boots and found supplies to pack:
A flask, a blanket, torch and map,
to carry on Dad's back.

"I heard they're super fast," I said.
"Let's climb up somewhere high.
Perhaps we'll catch one scaling walls or soaring through the sky."
